

Arbitration and Conciliation Act, 1996 - Arbitration being a special remedy which can be created only under a contract, the same not having been created and come into being the remedy of the petitioner is only by way of ordinary civil and/or criminal remedies - If the arbitration clause would not apply, the petitioner would be entitled to initiate civil proceedings and/or criminal proceedings as against the respondents.

read HERE

PLRonline 423530

PLRonline 423530