

Revisonal jurisdiction of the High Court,- Where two courts have returned concurrent findings of fact, has observed that the High Court would normally not interfere in concurrent findings of fact until and unless it is shown that there is gross misreading of evidence or ignoring of material evidence on record which renders the finding of the courts below to be perverse.

Hindustan Petroleum Corporation Limited v. Dilbahar Singh, (2014) 9 SCC 378